Aim

The aim of this option is to encourage the participation in organic production in Scotland by supporting farmers and groups of farmers to convert their land to organic status.

Organic farming seeks to work with natural processes using methods that are designed to achieve a sustainable production system with limited use of external inputs.

These options provide support to farmers or groups of farmers to use organic farming methods and to encourage the expansion of organic production in Scotland to deliver environmental benefits.

Eligibility

Any land in Scotland is eligible.

You should not include areas of land covering rocks, scree, water, dense bracken etc. We will check this using the same approach we use to check land for the Basic Payment Scheme.

Assessing your land eligibility

To apply you must provide evidence with your application that conversion of the land is viable through the submission of an endorsement from a UK-approved Organic Certification Body.

Spatial targeting

This option is available throughout Scotland.

Requirements

- you cannot begin conversion of the land included in your proposal before the full proposal is submitted. If your proposal is accepted into RDCs you must have begun conversion by either six months from the date of your approval letter or by your contract start date (usually 1 January) – whichever is the later. You will need to submit confirmation to the Scottish Government that you have begun organic certification within the permitted timescales. The 'approval letter' is the letter we send to you acknowledging receipt of the signing page to the contract. The key date here is therefore the date on the letter we send to you acknowledging receipt of the signing page to the contract
- you must comply with the organic standards (as laid out by European Commission Regulations and the UK Organic Products Regulations) and additionally the Organic Production and Care of the Environment Standards as advised in the UK Compendium of Organic Standards for the duration of your contract for the area subject to conversion for each payment category
- you must enter a viable production unit (as agreed by an Organic Certification Body), manage it according to organic standards, be an active farmer and remain registered with a Certification Body throughout the period of the agreement
- you must submit, along with your first annual recurrent claim, confirmation from your organic certification body of the conversion start date of the area subject to conversion payment
- each year of your contract, you must submit a copy of your annual production (Land Parcel) schedule and your most recent certificate(s) in support of your annual recurrent claim. The certificate(s) provided must cover the whole period of the year of claim. You should send these to us as soon as they are supplied to you by your organic certification body
- if you enter land into the Fruit and Vegetables Conversion option you must grow a fruit or vegetable crop on that land at least once in years three to five of your contract

- land which was registered as fully organic at any time since 1 January 2000 is not eligible
